

The UWM Post

Independent News since 1956

For Immediate Release

UWM Post will host local politically active individuals and candidates for a Get Out The Vote event with students

MILWAUKEE- UWM Post is inviting local candidates, politically active individuals and anyone interested in student voter information awareness to come speak at Get Out The Vote: Student Voters Resource Fair. It will happen on Wednesday, October 28 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Spaight's Plaza on the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee's campus.

Interested speakers who would like to participate in this community conversation happening during the event should reach out with their availability during 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. on 10/28. Any speakers will be scheduled to talk during this one hour time slot.

This is intended to be a non-partisan conversation with topics including general voter awareness, issues impacting college students and the importance of voting. The conversation will be moderated/hosted by student journalists from the UWM Post.

Other UW-Milwaukee student organizations, resources and voting partners will be active during the fair. As well as activities for students and general social gathering.

UWM Post is developing a physical media literature piece on student voter information to hand out at the event if you are interested in being featured in some way.

About UWM Post

The UWM Post is a student newspaper independently run by students at UW-Milwaukee, bringing original news and reporting to the UWM campus and the greater Milwaukee area. Read more: <https://uwmpost.com/about-us>

CONTACT PERSON:

Ethan Ainley

UWM Post Editor-in-Chief

ejainley@uwm.edu or officialuwmpost@gmail.com